Professional Summary

I am a driven student from Monrovia, Liberia, passionate about Cybersecurity, Finance, International Relations, Criminal Justice, and Law. With strong computer skills, public speaking experience, and the ability to perform under pressure, I offer a unique mix of technical and interpersonal capabilities.

I have mentored youth through nonprofit organizations and served in multiple leadership roles reflecting my passion for education and community development. I am currently a literature teacher at St. Simon Baptist High School and a Computer Assistant Clerk at Maretha International Preparatory High School. I actively participate in professional development programs including Harvard's CS50x course and WIPO's Intellectual Property Academy.
